ABSTRACT

The Houston Community College System 1999-2000 Fact Book provides general statistical information about the college system. Highlights of the report include: (1) out of 702 full-time faculty during fall 1999, 51.2% had master's degrees as highest degree earned; while 26.0% had bachelor's or other qualifications and 22.7% had doctoral degrees; (2) the system transfer rate for the 1997-98 academic year was 28.8%, slightly lower than the state transfer rate of 29.0%; (3) top academic courses for fall 1999 were English, mathematics, and history; (4) top technical courses for fall 1999 were computer science technology, health sciences programs, and construction trades; (5) continuing education enrollment distribution showed that 31.6% enrolled in drivers' education, 26.7% enrolled in computer science courses, and 14.5% enrolled in language courses. PREFACE

The Houston Community College System (HCCS) 1999-2000 Fact Book provides general statistical information about the college system. It is important for the reader to be aware that data presented in this publication may differ slightly from statistics found in other system reports. Such variances may result from differences in the source of information used (IPEDS, CBMs, TEA, HCCS reports), the reporting period covered (semester, academic year), or the student base included (credit, noncredit, credit/noncredit combined). For these reasons, the source of the information in each table and graph is cited, along with the date generated, the reporting period, and the students included. Trends are tracked using consistent sources for identical time periods and students.

The 1999-2000 Fact Book is available online at <http://www.hccs.cc.tx.us>.

GENERAL INFORMATION

OVERVIEW

The Houston Community College System stands as a model for urban community colleges across the nation, through partnerships with the business community, other educational institutions and numerous public agencies. Since its inception in 1971, the college system has touched the lives of more than a million individuals in the greater Houston area which boasts a population of close to three million.

HCCS is the third largest community college system in the State of Texas and the largest on the Texas Gulf Coast. Its five regional colleges offer workforce training programs, academic transfer courses and continuing education to one of the largest and most diverse student bodies in the country.

To meet the needs of Houston's expanding technology base and globally interconnected population, the college system has embarked on a facilities expansion plan. At the beginning of Fall semester 1999, we opened the Codwell Hall, the Roland W. Smith Commercial Truck Driving Center, and the Pinemont Center as part of Northeast College; the Town & Country Square Campus at Northwest College; and the state-of-the-art Dr. John B. Coleman Health Science Center in the internationally acclaimed Texas Medical Center and the Angela Morales building, both at Southeast College.

As the state-mandated workforce trainer for the city of Houston, with a commitment to intellectual growth, economic expansion and community development, the college system has developed a broad range of programs and services to ensure that no group of individuals is without resources to reach its goals. This comprehensive approach to education will be the key to the economic vitality of this city in the coming century.
